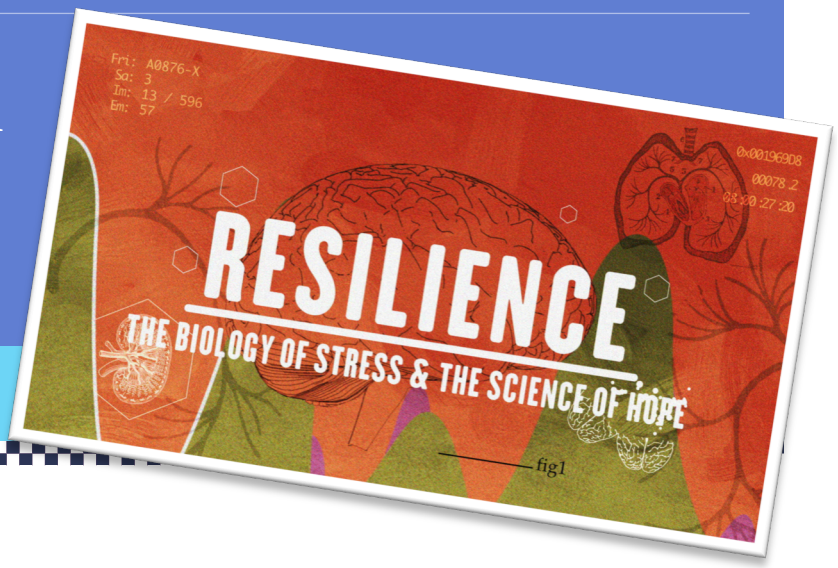
The Resilience Symposium

ACEs Awareness Program for Community Leadership

A landmark medical study reveals two-thirds of our children have an early adversity raising the risk for a host of physical, emotional and social problems



This impacts us all.

Wednesday, Sept 26th

Who should attend?	Local government officials, Law enforcement, medical personnel, mental health practitioners, school leaders, Court & Legal officials, Faith-based organizations, Social Service providers, Youth & Recreation leaders
When?	Wednesday Sept 26th, 2018 Registration sign-in 5:30 pm Program 6:30 pm to 8:30 pm
Where?	Trinity Episcopal Church 265 E. Main Street Hamburg, NY 14085
Sign Up Now	Tickets are FREE but Seating is limited! WhiteWavesEducation.com/the_resilience_symposium

Why Attend?

There is no single recipe for resilience. But thanks to the work of scientists, physicians, social workers, psychologists, educators and many others who are passionately engaged in this work, we are starting to learn how to prevent and ameliorate Adverse Childhood Experiences at both the individual and community level. We hope you will share these examples and concepts with others—members of your faith community, parents in your neighborhood, educators at your local school, your colleagues in the fields of health and human behavior, public safety experts, academics and elected officials—and make connections within and across all those groups.

The film documentary "Resilience: the Biology of Stress & the Science of Hope" provides information about ACEs—their prevalence, their effects, and the potential for healing—needs to become common knowledge that will bolster a grass-roots movement for change. The film is followed by a panelist-led discussion. By thinking, talking and working together, from living rooms to clinic offices to legislative chambers, we can foster healthier, more vibrant lives for every child, teenager and adult.

Tickets are free BUT seats are limited – Register now!

Go To https://whitewaveseducation.com/the_resilience_symposium